Arrowwood High School Play Another Success

Good Attendance in Spite of Bad Roads

The Annual High School Play "The Road Back Home," a royalty play, was presented in the school auditorium last Friday night with a large crowd attending, despite the bad roads. The orchestra made up of Mrs. A. Phillips, pianist, Mr. G. R. Rennie, violinist, and Russell Borris and Melvin Bowman, saxophonists, played many enjoyable numbers.

The Vice-President of the Literary Society, Jack Williams expressed his appreciation to the orchestra for their kindness in supplying the music, to the audience for their presence and then announced the cast of characters.

At the very of the curtain the audience was confronted with a wonderful display of scenery which Melvin Bowman made for the benefit of the play. A low rambling mansion of the south was the centre of attraction with trees in the background, while a lawn, walk and picket fence were in front. One wing of the scenery represented a lake on which was an anchored boat. The lake was surrounded with trees and brush. The other wing was the outside of Mrs. True's cottage with a weeping willow near it.

On the stage an artistic picket fence ran all the way across with a gate on one side. Many paper flowers were scattered here and there to represent flower gardens on the lawn.

In the first act Jimmie True came home to his mother and tried to stay. A train robbery was committed and Ory Hoskins carried a parcel around containing fifty thousand dollars from it.

Between acts II and III the outdoor scenery was changed to an interior one, taking place in the home of Ory Hoskins.

In act III Winnifred Wayne, a Secret Service Agent, clears up all mysteries by pronouncing the supposed Stark to be Connolly, an escaped convict, Jimmie True turns out to be the real Stark and the passages to contain nothing but these.

Every member of the cast performed in a creditable manner to make the play a successful one, but as in all plays, certain persons were outstanding. Great credit should be given to Mr. McCullough, the director, who showed good psychology in his choice of characters. Very few would have thought that Teddy Weiss would be such a success in character of a crook, but no other person could have enacted this important part in a better manner. Teddy was without doubt one of the individual stars of the play. No better person could have been selected for Sheriff than Kenneth Vancil, and dressed for the occasion he carried the part through almost to perfection. Herman Leith was perfect as the humor one, express agent well suited to the part and in costume adopted to the work. Margaret Richards enacted the matronly

Here and There

Vancouver is holding this year the Golden Jubilee celebration and a special performance of Shakespeare's "Mid-summer Night's Dream" in Stanley Park, a performance of Hilarious, as special decorations and illuminations all over Vancouver. Celebrations will reach their peak in the first ten days of July.

At the annual Burns dinner held at the Empress Hotel, Victoria in February at which over 200 Burns lovers took part, the royal Scotch banquets were brought over from Vancouver and was carried in steaming hot on a silver platter by Miss Owen Dewar. Donald Cameron, greetings were received from South Africa, Australia, the United States and London, England.

Stating emphatically that success depends on hard, Captain Charles M. Hudson, D.O. and Bar, R.N.R., commander of Q-boat for two years of the war, had a hard job convincing the Active Club International at Hotel Vancouver recently of the entire truth of the statement. They thought it all, courage and foresight had something to do with success after hearing some of his adventures.

Recently the Royal York Hotel, Toronto held a Cherry Pie Contest in which the winners gave ten prizes in order of merit and the good housewives of the Queen City were all agog. The judges of course had their work cut out for them as they did a bit of cutting for themselves.

"It is a pity every British Columbia business man can not find it possible to visit the Far East, especially Japan," said C. A. Cotterell, assistant general manager, British Columbia, for the Canadian Pacific Railway, just back from a trip to the Orient. Mr. Cotterell thought a visit would be an education, enlightening and of inestimable value in a practical sense.

Two prominent British residents in Kobe are fighting a losing battle against a cedar tree which they fear is about to fall on their residence, according to passengers arriving in Victoria recently on the Empress of Japan. They can't get it felled because it is believed if that is done, a pestilence will strike the district.

New Organ For Westminster

Instrument To Be Installed In Time For Coronation Of King Edward
Westminster Abbey is to have a new organ in time for the coronation of King Edward VIII. It is expected to cost £20,000. An anonymous donor has given £10,000, and it is hoped the balance will be raised without a public appeal. "Most of our present organ is 200 years old," said the dean of Westminster, Dr. Foxley Norris, "and it has been patched and patched in recent years. Once or twice it has broken down and one whole part of the organ is out of action."

Tin cans were first made by tin-smiths, who turned them out by hand at the rate of 50 a day.

Icebergs have been known to take as long as 200 years to melt.

SYNOPSIS

The story opens with Link Fleming attending a meeting of Boone County cattlemen, called together with the object of forming an irrigation company.

The meeting terminates, but Buzz Hamilton and his sister, Helen, Link and Kilgo stay behind and Helen asks Fleming questions about his irrigation plan. This angers Buzz, who accuses Fleming of trying to influence his sister and, as he asserts, ruin his "spread." Buzz shoots at Fleming in an uncontrollable fit of anger, but Buster Townsend, Link's foreman, is shot in the stomach, and Fleming is injured. Buzz is arrested and sentenced to three years imprisonment.

Helen and Fleming form a partnership to provide irrigation for their own properties. Fleming goes home and studies the plans drawn by Torney to learn whether they could be adapted to a smaller scheme suitable for his and Helen's land, and it is decided that it could be done. Feeling cold, he lights the fire and there is an explosion that wrecks the house, burns it and the plans and renders Link unconscious. He is rescued from the blaze by an employee.

Helen and Link ride to Rawhide for supplies and to obtain funds to carry out the dam project. They meet Roper, who greets Helen and offers to shop with her. Link goes to see the Sheriff, who tells him Buzz Hamilton has been paroled, and would arrive on the incoming stage.

Link, who thinks Link has made a mistake in getting Buzz released, but Buzz Hamilton arrives back in Rawhide while Fleming and Helen are in the bank waiting for payment of wages for work on the dam. Roper Kilgo and Jackpelt Meil tell him and he goes into the saloon with them. By the time his horse and cark come from the bank, Buzz has had several drinks. Roper has distorted the facts concerning the dam proposal to Buzz, making it appear that Link was trying to ruin him. Buzz, inflamed with liquor and anger, tries to throttle Fleming, but is thrown to the floor. The police appear and tell Fleming she has been robbed of the $500 they had obtained from the bank.

(Now Go On With The Story)

CHAPTER X

Fleming ran down the few steps from his saloon platform, crossed the board sidewalk, and grasped her pinto's bridle. "Robbed!" he echoed. "You mean our eight hundred—It's gone?"

"Yes! As I rode past the timber near Iron Spring a man held me up. I—struggled with him, he—panted. But he got our eight hundred dollars. Oh, Link, what shall we do?"

He slipped the pinto's reins over her arm and out the corners of his eyes he saw men hurrying from the saloon. "Sh—make out! It don't count much," Helen said, added with quick concern at sight of a dark bruise on her cheek. "You're hurt!"

"No. It's nothing." She touched the spot and with fingers that trembled, tucked her glossy hair into place and readjusted her worn station. The girl brushed dust from her blouse and skirt and glanced toward the approaching men. Suddenly her face brightened. Buzz. At first she gulped incredulously and her red lips parted. Then uttering a low cry, Helen darted forward.

"Buzz!" She flung herself into his arms. Fleming, with Roper Kilgo, Meil, and the others watched for an instant the mute display of affection between brother and sister. Touched by the scene, they turned away. Link took a hand on his arm and looked up into the grey glinting eyes of Sheriff Ames Stephen.

"How? Who did it? Where?" He could not reply to the third question but did answer the first. "Some of the Star Loop crowd set me in a tione of the others could not hear, 'don't let out how much,' 'cause it'd be hard to explain for us up at the dam. Helen got robbed of eight hundred bucks but was borrowed from Otto Pieper."

The law man's eyes widened. He strode over to the girl, Fleming at his heels. "Tell me about this, Miss Hamilton, now I can start huntin' for the guy right off!"

There was another moment of staring at Buzz, taking his thin face and her two soft palms, while she kissed him again and again. "Oh! she breathed as happy, thankful tears coated down the smooth cheeks of her cheeks. "I'm glad you're free, Buzz! Nothing else matters now. But how—" She stopped. "I don't understand. Four three years—"

"Link got me paroled," Buzz reassured the rasher with eyes that expressed not his slightest gratitude. 2144

THE person to ask whether the preparation you or your family are taking for the relief of headaches is SAFE to use regularly is your family doctor. Ask him particularly about "ASPIRIN."

He will tell you that before the discovery of "Aspirin" most "pain" remedies were advised against by physicians as bad for the stomach and, often, for the heart. Which is food for thought if you seek quick, safe relief.

Scientists rate "Aspirin" among the latest methods yet discovered for the relief of headaches and the pains of rheumatism, neuritis and neuralgia. And the experience of millions of users has proved it safe for the average person to use regularly. In your own interest remember this:

Helen turned to look at Fleming, who asked her weight in enquiringly. At length he lifted his gaze and find hers still fixed upon him. Unspeakable tenderness lay in the soft pool of her eyes, and a fondness he had scarcely dared hope even to exist. Of a sudden he felt again that the Silver Creek project must be made a success! So that later, when both spreads prospered from its waters, he could ask Helen the question he had toyed with inwardly, while they looked at the wedding and engagement ring display in Ivy Lane's window.

She was describing the holdup. "He wore a bandana mask and walked out from behind a big bulldog right alongside the road. He had two guns and he was a heavy-set man, not very tall, but powerful looking. He wanted the money—we had just drawn from the bank." "How much?" Kilgo asked directly.

"I had my thirty-eight," she continued, pretending not to care. "I tried to get it, but he caught me and grabbed my wrist. Pulled me off my horse, and we struggled. He—he hurt me, bending my arm behind my back. But I got a cut," she finished with grim-set lips. "I got this!"

Helen held forth a leather wrist cuff such as was commonly worn by purchasers. It was not new but dark with use, and its rivet design of a fleur-de-lis could only be made out on close inspection. Ames accented it a brief scrutiny and held the object aloft. "Anybody know whose this is?"

Apparently no one did. The cuff resembled others worn by many a man in Boone County, yet was noticeably similar. At length Stephen turned on his heel, starting toward his office fifty yards down the street. "I'm going for the bank," he announced brightly. "Might be there other clues. Sounds like that guy Berrens, maybe, that killed Soak Torney" set put dynamite in Link's store. Anyhow, I'll get that money back. Might take some time, but we'll grab the guy sooner or later!"

There was some doubt of this in Link's mind, but he did not voice it as he touched Helen's arm. "Do you think we might start for the ranch now?"

"Oh! Yes, I think we had better. Link," she added in a low voice, "could we get another loan from Otto Pieper?"

"That's thick on you. We better get out of town before Otto hears about this. There'd only be an argument and everybody'd find out about our business."

Roper Kilgo held her pinto while the girl remounted. "I'm shore sorry that hound had the crust to lay a finger on you, Hider. By gosh, if I meet up with 'im I'll be lead fast as fat afterward, yuh bet!" He flung a merry glance at Link. "Oughtn't to've been allowed to go alone anyhow if yuh had money along?" Roper growled. Fleming had dispatched Luke Green to his livery barn for a saddle horse, and this was now brought for Buzz Hamilton. He climbed astride somewhat stiffly but seemed pleased at the feel of a mount between his legs after no long a period, and they started at a trot out of Rawhide.

For some time Link rode in silence, listening to the eager questions Helen put to her brother. But young Hamilton was moody from the liquor he had consumed in the Half Moon, and once the excitement of the reunion waned, he adopted an attitude of dogged sullenness.

Instantly Helen urged her mount closer to Link's. "Is this the surprise you had for me? Is it what you spoke to Sheriff Stephen about?" He nodded. "I figured we'd come out of the bank about the time the stage rolled in so you'd get a real surprise. O course," he said so that Buzz could not hear, "I didn't plan on him gettin' into the saloon."

She cast a worried glance at her brother. He had turned his head away for a furtive sip from a pint flask of whisky. Stowing it in his pocket, he faced front, watching Helen covertly to see if they had noticed.

Helen's face wore a look of despair. She rode close to her brother and laid a hand on his arm. "I wish you wouldn't do that, Buzz," she said softly. "You know, I'm so glad you're back, and we're going to have such a wonderful time, starting all over again. You must forget the past and think only of the future. I want it general pardon to arrange to—to get your freedom, Buzz?"

He answered with a malcontent look. "You puttin' his gun over your yuh! Generous? Yeah—to him—"

"Why, Buzz! Whatever do you mean?"

"I mean he's roped yuh into his fool irrigation scheme—what folks call Fleming's Folly. He's afraid yuh might get out of the trap, so he's got a chance to save our Triple H from bankruptcy. So for a last play to keep yuh fooled he got me paroled. That, and because he was afraid Kilgo would get me a full pardon, the only thing really worth while. If I had my legal rights, Fleming couldn't figure to keep the wool pulled over yore eyes! Paroled this way, I can't get 'im out of here."

Helen stared from one man to the other, her pliant oval face drawn in pain. "Oh, Buzz, don't say that! I want into partnership with Link, of my own free will. Why that dam is going to be the makings of our approach!"

Again he fished the flat bottle from his pocket. "Makin' of the Star Loop, yuh mean?" Uncorking the flask, he raised it to his lips.

"Buzz! Don't drink please! You know yuh that it was part of the cause of your shooting—I mean—" Helen stopped suddenly and looked for dominance of her lovely face. "Buzz, please don't begin drinking and gambling the instant you come home."

He swallowed some of the fiery liquor as if deliberately to flout her request. But of a sudden, as he was moving the bottle away, Link spurred his stallion to Hamilton's off-side. With a quick sweep of his hand he sent the bottle hurtling into the dust.

Buzz gasped. "What the hell yuh doin'?"

"Keep this up and your parole is going to end dogged enough. I planned to surprise your sister, make her happy for sight of you, and here you back to company like the Jack-pot Meil and the others the minute you land in town. Watch your step! Link!"

"You'll end yourself on the inside lookin' out, like you were till I went to a lot of bother to help you!"

"Threatenin' me, eh? I wish to

Little Helps For This Week

In your patience possess ye your souls. Luke 21:19.

What though they way be dark, and earth With careless care doth vex thy mind To thee no sweet strain singeth; Still hide thy life above, and still Believe that God is love: Hail! Whatever ill He bringeth.

The soul loses command of itself when it is impatient. When it submits without a murmur it possesses itself in peace, and possesses God. To be impatient is to desire what we have not, or not to desire what we have. Why make a calamity of it by being impatient? Peace does not dwell in outward things, but within the soul. We may preserve it in the midst of bitter pain if we will remain firm and submissive. Peace in this life springs from acquiescence even in disagreeable things, not in an exemption from bearing them. The chief pang of most trials is not so much the actual suffering itself as our own spirit of resistance to it.

Origin Of Old Term

"Bitter End" Has No Connection With Meaning Of Word

When we speak of the bitter end we often mean an end that is the reverse of sweet, but the term originated in a way that has nothing to do with taste or the usual meaning of bitter. Bitter are a pair of posts on the deck of a ship for fastening a rope or cable. Thus when the bitter end has been paid out there is no rope left to wind round the bits.

part of the play in an excellent manner while June Clifgard demonstrated her clever ability in portraying the part of a devoted but shy little daughter. The romantic part of the drama was enacted by Hazel Taylor and Irwin Scott. The hold up man, Stark, eventually turned out to be Connelly, the part being played effectively by Lloyd

Irwin. The minor characters of the cast were Betty Jean Vancil and Shirley Ward, but although neither had a long part to play, both had important parts which were carefully performed.

The training given the pupils in work of this nature is certainly of great value. One only learns by doing, and everyone should be able to speak in the presence of an audience.

The cast of characters was as follows—
Mrs. True — Margaret Richards
Susie Hoskins — June Clifgard
Rose — Hazel Taylor

Ory Hoskens — Herman Leith
Helen — Betty Jean Vancil
Jimmy True — Irwin Scott
Micky Michaels — Teddy Weiss
John Mooney, Kenneth Vancil
Stark — Lloyd Irwin
Winifred Wayne, Shirley Ward

Wiley returned home unexpectedly to find the cupboard supplied with cheese and crackers and the basement with spirits. She threatened to go right back to mamma unless the horrid stuff was thrown out. Hubby explains how he got rid of the spirits.

"I withdrew the cork from the first bottle and poured the contents down the sink, with the exception of one glass, which I drank. I extracted the cork from the second bottle and did likewise, with the exception of one glass, which I drank. I then drew the cork from the third bottle, and emptied the good old booze down the sink, except a glass which I decanted. I hooked the cork from the fourth sink and poured the bottle down the glass which I drank."

"I pulled the bottle from the cork of the next and drank one sink out of it and threw the rest down the glass. I yanked the sink from the next glass and poured the cork down the bottle. I jammed the next cork from my throat and drank the pour."

"When I had everything emptied, I steadied the house with one hand and counted the bottles and corks with the other which was twenty-nine. To be sure I counted them again when they rushed by and had forty four or forty-seven, and as the house drifted by I counted them again and finally I had all houses and bottles and corks and glasses counted except one house and one bottle which I drank."
